Hicken the Winner in -Maguire's Jaw Broken

$2,000 came off yesterday D'orning near er fighting five round's in fifty minutes, ound. The fight was a very scientific and severe one and would doubtless have been a protracted struggle out for the accident that befel Maguire, and which wenty-eight years of age, stands five feet on this occasion was about 130 pounds. His first appearance in the prize ring was with Careless, whom he fought for ten pounds a side near Wolverhampton on November 6, 1861. He then scored his first victory in one hour and a half. His next appearance in the roped arens was with Hawley for ten pounds a side. This fight came off in the Hirmingham district on the 17th of July, 1882, and after a rattling mill for one hour and fifty-eight minutes. Abe was declared the winner. His next encounter was with Mick Moran, or Mick the Grecian, as he was more commonly called, for fafteen pounds a side, in the Birmingham district, December 30 and 31, 1882. There were two meeting's, but the police interfered and they had to make a draw of it after fighting in both rings for ty-four rounds in two hours and thrity-nine minutes. Hicken's fourth fight was with Ted Napper, whose weight was 114 pounds. They fought in the London district April 5, 186 s, for twenty-five pounds a side. The battle rese med in favor of Napper after fighting eighty-eight, rounds in two hours and forty-minutes. Chis was Hicken's first defeat. His fifth fight was a draw with Bob Furze after thirty-lin see rounds, in one hour and forty-mine min gates, at Ascot, January 24, 1865. Abe sixth Agatt was with Richard Holmes, known as Romy fa. This took place at Caff Heath, Stafford-shire, I secember 19, 1865, in waich nineteen rounds were fought in thirty-five minutes, when a postponement cook place until the next day to Selby Oak Valley, Worcestershire, where eighty-eight round & were fought in one hour and thirty-five po minutes, and resulted in a draw. Abe's were fought, in forty-five minutes, when a postpone-ment took place at Longdeld Court, near Moopham, Lo adon district, on May 24, 1866. After nine rounds were fought, in forty-five minutes, when a postpone-ment sook place at Longdeld Court, near Moopham, Lo adon district, on May 24, 1866. After nine rounds in two hours and seven minutes, Hicken shall may a five provide the search of the first ender, the had in the prize ring was with Careless, whom he inton to that part of the business. "He was fit to ht for a man's life."

PETER MAGUIRE was born in Ireland in 1840 and me to New York in 1843, where he halled from ill 1863, gaining a living by sometimes serving in the navy and at other times working on shore. In the analysis of the emigrated to the land of gold in the ope of bettering his fortunes, leaving his oki nother comfortable in a cottage he had bought her at Fishkill, on the Hudson river. After reaching california his associations were among the sporting men and buffers of that country, and it was not long before he expressed a willinguess to meet any of their fighting fraternity in the roped arens. As a fight can at any time be bought very cheap in that section of the Union, Mr. Maguire soon found a customer in the person of Tommy Chandler, the champion of the Golden Horn—or any other horn on the Pacific slope. Chandler bantered Maguire to fight him, and a purse of $2,000 was quickly subscribed by the lovers of boxing in San Francisco. The amount subscribed suited Maguire and Chandler, and they immediately put themselves in active training for the encounter. The completants agreed to fight for the encounter. With the bands of the first content of the property of the pro

soon afterwards called, and the men advanced to the scratch to commence

Round 3.—As the men approace each other there was a great contrast in the system that hands open continues. The continues are the contrast in the system of the hands open continues are the contrast in the system of the hands open contrast the contrast of the contrast of slipping gown on his knees. This round lasted about twelve minutes and with about equal honor gitppins own on his kneet. This round lasted anote tweive minutes and with about equal honor to both.

Round 5 and Last.—There was but little sparring, and both men seemed to mean business. Abe led off first with his left at Maguire's head (but was out of distance) and then aprang back. He was followed by Maguire, and soon they were at it hammer and tongs, in Micken's corner. They rattled away at each other at random, and during the conflict Hicken with a sort of round-handed right hand blay struck Peter on the point of the chin and broke his jaw. The effect of the blow was not known to Hicken at the moment, for after he delivered it he fell on his knees to close the round, and it was not known what mischief had beer really done until Maguire was carried to his own corner. As soon as the seconds discovered that the jaw was broken they threw up the sponge and discontinue, dithe fight, much to the astonishment of Hicken and his friends. The fight hasted allogether firty minutes.

It is nanecessary for us to say little more in relation to this fight than we have given above. Up to the time of the accident which befel Maguire't is wery apparent that the prospect of success was in his favor. The mea, however, were so closely matched that had the fight been a protracted one no one could have resulted. It is well to remark in connection with this affair that a collection was made by Hicken in person for the benefit of his defeated adversary, and over $170 was collected from the speciators.

The above fight affords another illustration of the progress of this so-called age of relinement and civilization. For about fifty years in this country prize fights have been so frequent as almost to have partaken of the character of an institution, and it is now about time that legislative enactment should put a stop to it for the future on account of its demoralizing tendencies. The practice is in duiged in by few except those in the lowest grades of society—the seum, as it may be termed, who seek to obtam a notoriety they can a

COCK FIGHTING.

New Jersey in the Field-Main of Five Between Newark and Union Hill—$300 the Main and $50 Each Battle—The Contest Undecided at Half-Past Twelve This Morn-

cock-pits of this section are again enlivened by the artial crow of eager birds, and the excitement dormant during the summer and autumn months is again renewed with additional zest. Last Friday the introductory contest of these fowls of noble lineage was fought and given to the public, and again it is the Herald's duty to chronicle other and stubborn battles. This match being noised abroad particularly among those who endeavor to keep men, gentlemanly in their conduct, but widely differ-ent in their respective stations in life, assembled at a retired spot in the suburbs of the city to witness the contest. Lawyers, medical men and men with ent in their respective stations in life, assembled, at a retired spot in the suburbs of the city to witness the contest. Lawyers, medical men and men with their long lists of houses and satisfactory bank accounts sat side by side with cart drivers, canal men, butchers and professional sports. It was a motley crowd, and worthy of an artist's hand to sketch.

This match, or more appropriately the main, was a Jersey one, and made between gentlemen living at Umon Hill on, the one hand and Newark on the other. Each seemed to have wisely courted and obtained the aid and alliance of sagacious and experienced outside parties, the result being the exhibition of several birds of rare pluck, and as a consequence determined fighting. The agreement was to show fifteen fowls, eight chickens weighing from four pounds, and seven cocks, weighing from four pounds, four onness to five pounds four onness to five pounds four onness for mores of five pounds four onness and light all that fell is for $64 a battle and $300 the main. The preliminaries of "weighing in" and adjusting the match list occupied as usual two hours or more, during which the majority of the throng amused themselves in a variety of ways, while others, whose experience in the world of fowlidom has been extended, interested the lazier members of the group in speculation and the recital of contests long passed, when it was asnounced that nine matches had been arranged, five constituting the main, the chickens to cuter the pit first, the light weights leading off.

THE HIRDS.

Those from Newark were bred in various sections of New Jersey and from the up-river towns, being of English and Irish strains, with here and there a "starch factory" and "Peckskill reds." The opposing birds were also of a mixed character, there being Serton and Derby strains crossed with Devonshite bollood of his descendants represented.

THE FIGHTING

commenced precisely twenty-five minntes past nine o'clock, the old pit looking a hundred per cent better than last year in its new face of whi
